

3 Beaney Walkscores

for the Fourth World Congress of Psychogeography (4WCoP) 2024

Psychogeography is the study of how places make us feel and behave. These walkscores, celebrating Canterbury's hosting of 4WCoP in September 2024, are designed to offer different ways of exploring the Beaney. Take them for a wander on your own, with a friend or as a family. How will you move, and what will you find?

Beaney/Gone

Take a stroll around the galleries looking for gaps, blanks, missing items and fragments that suggest absences. What do you imagine has disappeared? Where might it be now? Seek small niches, wall spaces and corners to fill. What would you place here, as a curator of the overlooked?

Heart & Knowledge

Look for objects that speak of the heart – in shape, colour, name or association – and let these lead you from room to room, thought to thought, discovery to discovery. Share a heartening find with a fellow explorer.

Nostalgiamble

Wander the galleries in search of objects that flood you with nostalgia. What speaks to you of childhood? What reminds you of a place or person from the past? Take some time to reminisce with your nostalgic object. Exploring with a friend? Share a memory triggered by one of your finds.
